

Availability

There are 18 cubicles available for behavioural research. They are labeled with a letter (A-W, except for G,M,N,O and P).

The cubicles cannot be booked beforehand. If you want to use them, you can simply go to the Brain & Behaviour Lab and select free cubicles to use. Usually, the cubicles are never fully occupied. There have always been at least 2 cubicles free for use at any time point. It is important to keep other researchers in mind when using cubicles, so do not just occupy as many cubicles as you can. If it is not busy, you are welcome to use up to 10 at one time. In busy periods, the Lab Coordinator may limit the number of cubicles you are allowed to use, to distribute everything fairly among the researchers. If you need to test more than 4-5 cubicles in busy periods, then notify the Lab Coordinator in advance in order to avoid a shortage of available cubicles.

There are sliders on top of each cubicle to indicate whether the cubicle is in use. When you are making use of a cubicle, slide it to red, so that others can see it is occupied. You can also do this to reserve a number of cubicles. Do not forget to slide it back to green when you are done!
